FICTIONAL DATA. Invented customers, quantities and prices. Not a real review, a benchmark or a typical result.

Sample report

September and October 2026. Illustrative prices.

12	15	6	£0
customers reviewed	licence lines compared	differences flagged	confirmed recoverable revenue

A difference is a lead to check, not proof of lost revenue. Nothing is confirmed until someone checks the contract and the customer invoice.

The review compares what Microsoft or your distributor charges you with what you bill each customer, for the same customer and licence, across two billing periods.

FICTIONAL DATA. Invented customers, quantities and prices. Not a real review, a benchmark or a typical result.

The six differences

October quantities. Difference = what Microsoft charges minus what is billed.

Customer	Licence	Microsoft	Billed	Diff.	Finding	Est. per month
C09	Business Basic	35	none	+35	Customer not in billing system	£241.50
C08	Business Premium	42	36	+6	Differs in both months	£120.00
C03	Business Standard	85	78	+7	Differs in both months	£87.50
C05	Business Standard	48	40	+8	October only: possible timing	not counted
C07	Business Standard	22	25	-3	Billed above supplier quantity	£37.50 over-billed*
C12	Business Basic	24	25	-1	October only: possible missed removal	not counted

Estimated monthly difference: £449 (C09, C08 and C03, which differ in both months). This is potential and unverified.
*C07 is over-billing exposure and is not in the £449.

What counts, and what does not

Two months are compared so one-off timing does not look like an error.

Counted: 4 in both months

- C09, C08 and C03: Microsoft charges for more licences than are billed (3 under-billed).
- C07: more is billed than Microsoft charges (1 over-billed).
- Because they repeat, they go on the list to investigate first.

Not counted: 2 in October only

- C05 and C12 appear in one month only.
- They may be timing, such as a joiner or leaver near the billing date.
- They are left out until they repeat.

Confirmed recoverable revenue in this sample: £0. None of the differences has been checked against a contract and a customer invoice.

FICTIONAL DATA. Invented customers, quantities and prices. Not a real review, a benchmark or a typical result.

Checked before anything is counted

A person verifies each item against the source records.

Customer and tenant mapping	Names and tenant IDs may not match between the distributor and the billing system.
Contract entitlement	Agreements, bundles and agreed seat counts decide what is billable.
Customer invoice	Credits, discounts, proration and billing dates can explain a difference.
Timing and exceptions	One-month gaps, duplicates and unmatched rows are listed, never dropped.

What a review needs from you

Your last two billing periods: the Microsoft or distributor invoices and your customer billing export. Customer-level licence counts only, no user names, and customer names can be replaced with codes. How files are sent, who can see them and when they are deleted is agreed in writing before anything is shared.

Not financial, legal or tax advice. Real exports vary by billing system, distributor and product naming, and mapping may be needed. No recovery is guaranteed.

Convoria, a small automation studio based in India | info@getconvoria.com | convoria.com